ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system comprising an analysis engine that interacts with a user profile server and a content management system. The user profile server is used to collect and manage data. The content management system manages a plurality

5   of content types for a plurality of service points in real-time. A service point supports a content type.